Volunteer groups raise local memorial flags every holiday

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

About 45 American flags flapped in the breeze on West Capitol Avenue's median on Monday, in honor of the Presidents' Day holiday. In fact, the flags are erected on the median (near Raley's, east of Westacre Rd.) on every civic-oriented holiday. It has become a local tradition.

"It is scheduled on a per-holiday basis with different service groups," explained West Sacramento parks manager Greg Valine. "This last weekend, it was the Masons who put up the flags."

Other local groups currently scheduled to put up and take down the flags on such holidays as Memorial Day, Veterans Day – and of course, Flag Day – are the Rotary Club, Moose Lodge, Kiwanis, Women of the Moose, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8762, the Emblem Club, Soroptimist International and the Elks Club. No one is yet signed up to take care of the flags on Founders Day, or the Fourth of July, but Valine anticipates that someone will step forward to take care of the flags on these holidays.

The flags themselves are stored at a local fire station after being individually funded by patrons seeking a memorial for a loved one. The service groups arrange to pick up the flags early in the morning of each holiday, install them, take them down and return them at the end of the day. The result is the West Sacramento Memorial Flag Plaza.

"We have a program where the public purchases the flags, including the pole and a brass plaque on each one with a memorial," said Valine. "The cost varies as the cost of the materials goes up and down. Right now it's $70 to buy one flag."

Currently, every hole drilled for a flag on the plaza has a matching flag. But the city is willing to drill more flag mounts if more members of the public are interested in sponsoring a flag memorial.

Valine can be reached at 373-5860 for more information.

River Ranch appealed

Group of Southport residents asks to review subdivision plan

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A group of over 20 Linden Road-area residents have joined behind an appeal led by resident David M. Williamson, asking the West Sacramento City Council to take another look at the "River Ranch" development planned for their neighborhood.

Williamson filed the notice of appeal – and paid the attendant $100 fee – which will bring the matter in front of the council tonight. He could not immediately be located for comment.

The letter of appeal asks the council to review the planning commission's approval of the 176-unit housing development, citing "the inadequate amount of time given the residents to review changes made to the original map."

Williamson added that he and his neighbors had only received six minutes to review the developer's amended map prior to the planning commission's Jan. 7 meeting and approval of the map, and that much of the negotiations occurred during the holiday season "when many people are very busy."

He expressed concern about how the development would affect local drainage issues and asked for artists' renderings of the view that the new development would present to its across-the-street neighbors on Linden Road. He also asked that the city make it mandatory that the development would include mandatory homeowner fees for the new houses.

City staff has presented a report to the council recommending that it affirm the planning commission's decision of project approval. The report says that "sufficient time was afforded both the applicant and the residents" and that "staff has not received any requests from the appellant for additional information or clarifications since the January 7th Planning Commission meeting."

The staff report also maintains that the project's drainage will be detained in a 13-acre on-site detention basin, and will not impact Linden Rd.

Stroud Properties is applying for the development rights for the project, which is located on the north side of Linden Road east of Jefferson Blvd. and Our Lady of Grace School.

The city council meets at 7 p.m. at 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento.

Split vote on superintendent

Contract extension draws two abstentions in school board vote

■ District listens to proposal for private high school in Broderick; approves plan to seek funding for counseling facility at River City High

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

With a split vote, the trustees of the Washington Unified School District opted to extend their superintendent's contract one year – into the year 2002.

"I would have loved to have a 5-0 vote, but I understand the trustees may choose not to do that," Superintendent Dr. Dennis Kelleher commented this week.

No board member voted against the contract extension, but two of them -- newcomer Ed Hocking and veteran board member Irene Eklund – abstained from voting. Casting "yes" votes to push Kelleher's contract out to three years were Pat Flint, Ardeene Westvik and David Farmer.

The superintendent's contract includes a 1999-2000 salary of $102,278 per year, an expense allowance for vehicle travel and other costs of $500 per month, and benefits.

In other board business at its Feb. 9 meeting:

■ The board heard a presentation from the Country Day School institution, which is negotiating for a possible Broderick-area site for a private high school in West Sacramento.

Superintendent Kelleher said that this proposal "is in no way a threat to River City High School," since the proposed tuition range is higher than most local students can afford.

"In no way will they be competition," he added. "In fact, they may be a good neighbor and an asset to us."

■ The school board unanimously agreed to seek funding from the West Sacramento Foundation and the Cameron Foundation to build a counseling center building on district land near the south end of River City High School's campus.

"We would like to have local counseling service agencies available on campus, but this is not currently practical at River City," said Kelleher. "We have a need for private space for counseling. The building would cost somewhere between $90,000 and $130,000, because we would have to prepare the ground and get utilities out there."

Kelleher said the building, if funded, would house counselors from a variety of local agencies such as mental health organizations. The district would fund the operations of the building, including utilities and maintenance.

'Maybe 10 percent of the students' families responded, and of those a slim majority – perhaps 60 percent – favored uniforms. I think it would be unfair to go ahead with uniforms based on such a small number of responses.'
DR. DENNIS KELLEHER, on instituting school uniforms at Golden State

Several residents have expressed concern that a group of oak trees at the site would be threatened by the development.

"None of the oak trees would be destroyed," said Kelleher.

A proposal for school uniforms at Golden State Middle School has stalled, the superintendent also reported. Most of the district's elementary schools have adopted non-binding student uniform policies, but parents at the middle school have been stingy with their opinions on the matter.

Few of them returned surveys asking for their feelings about school uniforms, said Kelleher.

"We did not get a very good response," he commented. "Maybe 10 percent of the students' families responded, and of those a slim majority – perhaps 60 percent – favored uniforms. I think it would be unfair to go ahead with uniforms

ABOUT TOWN:

Setting a good example for athletes

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

When Andy LoForte first moved to West Sacramento he was only six years old.

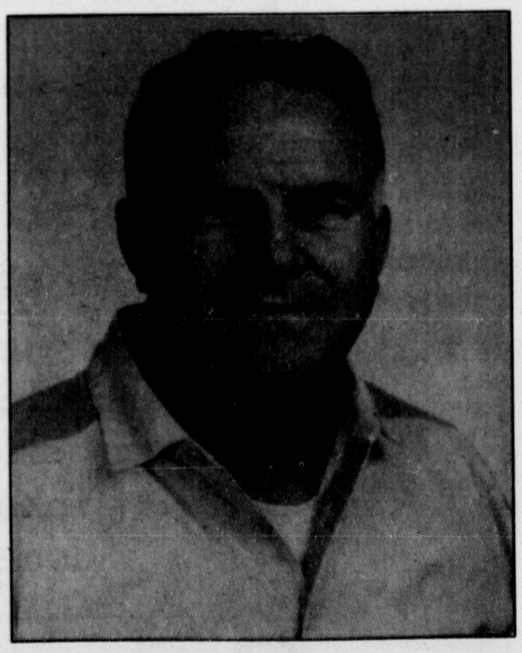
"My parents enrolled me in Westfield Village Elementary School the very first year it opened," recalled Andy, "and my father still lives in the same house on Chaparral Way that I grew up in."

Andy can't remember a time when he didn't love the sport of baseball and he was only eight years old when it was determined that he was good enough to play on a major league team in what was then the brand new West Sacramento Little League. From there he went on to play high school baseball at James Marshall High School and college baseball at Sacramento State University. In his senior year at Sac State, Andy hit a solid .353 and was named the team captain and Most Valuable Player.

"I guess like most of the guys I grew up with," said Andy, "I dreamed of someday playing in the big leagues. My father had been a very good semi-professional player and my brother, John, was scouted by the Boston Red Sox, but although the Yankees and Mets showed a little interest in me, I decided to turn all my attention to getting my teaching credential, and I've always been glad I did."

Andy's first teaching job was as a seventh grade science instructor at the old Broderick School.

"I only got to teach a year or so before I was drafted," remembered Andy, who suddenly found himself a second lieutenant in the United States Army. "I was very lucky in the sense that the war in Vietnam was beginning to wind down by the time I got there, and outside of a few pretty scary mortar and rocket attacks, my year overseas wasn't too bad."



ANDY LOFORTE, RCHS baseball coach

"We met at a college dance," recalled Andy, "and Denni has always been very understanding and supportive of my teaching and coaching career. During baseball season when I'm almost always putting in 12-hour-days, she never complains, and I don't know what I would do without her."

Andy started his athletic coaching career at what is now Golden State Middle School, and then in the mid-1980s, when he moved over to the science department at River City High School, he also became the head coach of the varsity baseball team.

"Norm Marks, who is one of the best coaches I've ever known, offered me the position," said Andy, "and I've really enjoyed my 14 years of coaching the team. I try to keep things organized and pretty simple. I just want the kids to learn the fundamentals, play hard and with class, enjoy themselves, and learn to respect the game. Winning is important, but it's certainly not everything."

Andy's teams have had 13 winning seasons during his 14 years at the helm, and this year's squad is shaping up to be another good club.

"Senior pitchers Brian Schrimsher and Ronnie Crayne are back this year," said Andy, "so our pitching should be strong. Plus a number of the kids who played on last year's junior varsity championship team have moved up and they're going to be a big help to us.

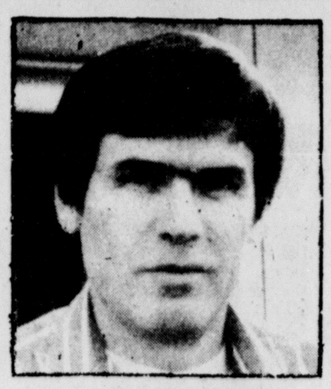
Why are pro athletes so good at saying stupid things?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

From time to time, well-intentioned friends will hand me a book they've recently purchased and ask me to give it a little plug in this column, no doubt also hoping to get me to print something they might actually enjoy reading. So here are some excerpts from one such book, entitled Jeff Parietti's "The Book of Truly Stupid Sports Quotes":

"Nobody in football should be called a genius. A genius is a guy like Norman Einstein." (Joe Theismann)

"Being in politics is like being a football coach. You have to be smart enough to know the game and stupid enough to think it's important." (Eugene McCarthy, U.S. Senator and 1968 Democratic presidential candidate)

"If it's undisputed, then what's all the fighting about?" (Comedian George Carlin, on the boxing term "undisputed champion").

"His nerves, his memory, and I can't remember the third thing." (Lee Trevino, on the three things that go as a golfer ages)

"He's a quick learner, but he forgets quick, too." (Michael Thompson, Los Angeles Lakers reserve center, on new Sacramento Kings center Vlade Divac)

"Lay down so I can recognize you." (Willie Pep, ex-featherweight champion, on seeing a former fighter whose name he didn't remember)

"I can't really remember the names of any of the nightclubs we went to." (Shaquille O'Neal, on whether he had visited the Parthenon during his trip to Greece)

"We used to pray the White Sox and the Cubs would merge so Chicago would have only one bad team." (Comedian Tom Dreesen, on growing up a baseball fan in Chicago)

"The last time the Cubs won a World Series was in 1908. Hey, any team can have a bad century." (Tom Trebelhorn, Chicago Cubs manager)

"I'd like to see the holes made bigger." (Fuzzy Zoeller, when asked about the changes he would make in golf)

"Every night I tell myself, 'I'm going to dream about my girlfriend', but it's always ham hocks." (Nate Newton, 320 pound Dallas Cowboy guard)

"What do you have when you've got an agent buried up to his neck in sand? Not enough sand!" (Pat Williams, Orlando Magic general manager)

"I'd look for the guy who lost it, and if he were poor, I'd give it back." (Yogi Berra, on what he's do if he found $1 million)

"He's the first guy to drive a $300,000 car with license plates he made himself." (Jay Leno, after Mike Tyson bought four Bentley automobiles upon his release from prison)

"You know that isn't really his hair. They found it hanging off some horse's butt." (Jerry Grandville on the dredlocks of San Francisco 49er tight end Jamie Williams)

"A lot of horses get distracted. It's just human nature." (Nick Zito, trainer of 1994 Kentucky Derby winner Go for Gin)

"In my next life I want to come back as a kicker, or some fat lady's poodle. It's basically the same thing." (Howie Long, Raider defensive end, on kickers)

"You know it's summertime at Candlestick when the fog rolls in, the wind kicks up, and you see the center fielder slicing open a caribou to survive the ninth inning." (Comedian Bob Sarlatte)

"He can't even jump high enough to touch the rim, unless they put a Big Mac on it." (Charles Barkley, on new Sacramento King reserve center Oliver Miller)

"He can hit just as good right-handed as he can left-handed. He's just naturally amphibious." (Yogi Berra, on Mickey Mantle)

"The old one didn't float too well." (Craig Stadler, on why he was using a new putter at the U.S. Open)

"Three of my wives were very good housekeepers. After they divorced me, they kept the house." (Willie Pep, ex-featherweight champ, who was married six times)

"If he raced his pregnant wife, he'd finish third." (Tommy Lasorda, on slow-footed former Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia)

"We weren't trying to circumcise the rules." (Bill Cowher, Pittsburgh Steelers coach)

"The reason women don't play football is because 11 of them would never wear the same outfit in public." (Comedienne Phyllis Diller)

"He treats us like men. He lets us wear earrings." (Torrin Polk, about his University of Houston college football coach, John Jenkins)

"Why does everybody stand up and sing 'Take Me Out to the Ballgame' when they're already there?" (Larry Anderson, major league pitcher)

Some of the players we're especially counting on are Eric King, Arnie Mendes and Bobby Flippin, all of whom can pitch as well as play other positions, and Brady Tacdol, our shortstop, who set a record for stolen bases last year. Second baseman Hector Yabes is another one of our good players and I also like the way Morton Geivett plays the game. He's our 'mister utility' and he's also one of those kids who are very coachable, and they're always great to have on a team."

Norm Marks, who was the athletic director at River City High School for ten years and the varsity baseball coach from 1974 to 1985, said, "West Sacramento has a long and rich tradition of producing good high school baseball teams and Andy LoForte has played a very important role in that. He's had a number of championship clubs, but what I really like about him is that he is a great role model for his players. He is always calm, doesn't scream at umpires, and uses good judgement when he is on the field. He's an extremely hard worker, very conscientious, and the fact that he was a good player himself has helped him communicate well with his players. He's done an outstanding job and he possesses all the qualities a good high school coach should have. River City is very lucky to have him."

"I always wanted to be an athletic coach," said Andy, "and I was fortunate enough to play for and also observe a number of really good baseball coaches, including John Corrigan and Norm Marks on the high school level and Cal Boyes at Sac State. They all had their own way of doing things, but they also had one thing in common -- a true love and appreciation of the game -- and that's what I really try to pass along to my players. We've had a lot of very good ball players here during my 14 years, including Gavin Hill, Robert Dodd, Willie Smith, Shane Garrett, Randy Byard, Brian Moore, Mark Palamedessi, Justin Hanks and Gary Herren, just to name a few, but no matter how much or how little ability my players have had, I like to think that just about every one of them had a good time while they were here. I love working with young athletes and as long as it continues to be fun, I plan to keep on coaching."

In addition to his wife, Denni, who has graciously put up with the many years of his being away at games and practices, Andy is also extremely thankful for all the help he has received from Chuck Robinson, his longtime coach, and Mike Faiello, who works very hard to make sure the playing fields at River City are always in good condition.

Andy and Denni have three children; 30-year-old Brian, who teaches at Cal Middle School and coaches the McClatchy High School varsity baseball team, and 26-year-old Scott and 21-year-old Robyn, both of whom work in the insurance industry.

Every child deserves the best opportunities life has to offer. Especially yours.

The odds of her becoming an astronaut and reaching the stars are out of this world. But the chances are more than 1 in 4 that your baby isn't protected against childhood diseases like polio, measles, chicken pox, tetanus and others.

So, even if you're sure your child is up to date and on schedule with her baby shots, ask your doctor at every visit. It couldn't hurt.

In fact, it could give her the chance to grow up to be whatever she wants to be.

Even if it's something out of this world.

News-Ledger Editorial

The challenging pace of progress

One of the challenges of running a local government is moving things forward without speeding them out of grasp of the average concerned citizen. This is a challenging balance: private interests seeking to build a housing development, for example, have a right to a minimum of delay and red tape. City staffers and elected officials are there to make the decisions and judgment calls necessary for these plans, but sometimes there is something in the deal that attracts worry and concern from those who live or do business nearby.

This is when everybody involved needs to take a breather and make sure the public comes along for the ride; that nothing is rushed through before outside concerns have had an honest and reasonable chance to be addressed. Locally, there are several examples of this balancing act in view right now, including:

■ A proposal by the charity group Loaves & Fishes to refer tenants to a 4th Street apartment complex has raised questions from neighbors about whether this means trouble in the neighborhood. Proponents say it won't – the tenants will be screened for their potential as good, rent-paying citizens. But some residents fear the plan will bring in new residents who are on shaky ground with respect to drug and alcohol recovery programs.

Neighbors are voicing their concerns and searching for facts. City hall has become involved in an effort to sort out the issues as well.

Apparently, the plan does not require the approval of the city, since it is just a rental agreement between private parties. But Loaves & Fishes would be well advised to take a deep breath and schedule a community meeting to air out the facts and emotions – before proceeding any further.

■ Linden Road neighborhood residents are challenging a decision by the city planning commission to approve the layout of a subdivision nearby. While stating no opposition to the housing project itself, they have mentioned concerns about how the project's design will impact local traffic and drainage, and how it will affect the character of this long-rural neighborhood.

Whether or not these issues prove valid, it is true that the timing of the meetings that led to the planning commission's approval was unfortunate. Out of respect to the rights of the developer, much of the process occurred in a hurry and during the holiday season – not the best way to promote public understanding.

■ And on a bigger scale, there is a group of baseball players in Canada right now who expect to be circling the bases and fielding grounders about 14 months from now in what is currently an industrial West Sacramento area near the Tower Bridge.

This means that city officials are breaking a lot of speed records, calling special meetings and conferencing over real estate negotiations in an effort to make a planned new minor league stadium happen.

The lesson is that if you blink, it will all be over. The stadium deal will move fast. For an interested resident to participate in the decision-making process while that participation still means something, he or she will have to jump on board very quickly and pay attention very hard.

Otherwise, there will be another communication gap, and another group of citizens shaking their heads about a proposal that is already a "done deal."

Loaves & Fishes' local plans

At the February 10 City Council meeting several elderly ladies were understandably upset upon learning that Loaves and Fishes (providing meals for homeless) is in process of leasing those low income apartments at 4th and B Streets, the fear being that such units will house drug addicts. But L & F staff claim that will not be the case and the L & F will have an on-site manager living there.

Then who would occupy such units? How about those SSI'ers who now pay over $500/month for those motel units without stove or refr? L & F might well offer these units for $200-250/month to said SSI'ers if the latter agrees to letting the former manage their money for the nominal $25/month. Presently, many SSI'ers occupy motel rooms and since to move into units with stove and refr results in about $70/month reduction in their check of about $700/month...only in California; i.e., $700/month would be reduced to about $630/month. But the reduced rent would mean about $200/month more in the pockets of SSI'ers. Since L & F already provides many meals to these SSI'ers (esp. after the 10th of the month), the more effective management of SSI'ers monthly checks should result in fewer meals meals/lesser expenses for L & F and even less panhandling for meals. (And just maybe L & F plan to use some units to house some of their minimum-pay staff or some needing emergency housing.) The on-site management factor should be encouraging, too.

When the Margaret McDowell complex on Merkley Ave. is completed by mid-year, will managers advertise across the river for 90% of the units – like the last time? Let's hope not.

Motel owners, fret not. As we get our new City Hall, etc., and if we get the ballpark, demand for your units will increase. Speaking of ball park (and the financing), with all of Sacramento (City)'s restaurants, if they continue to NOT join Sac County, Yolo County and West Sac, then West Sac should definitely think of more local eateries – including a buffet type, once final ball park approval is realized. Yes, this is for "sales tax revenue competition." And maybe that ballpark should include plans for football as well as for baseball. Yes, hometown games would increase demand for motel rooms...(so) "Take us out to the ball game..."

For the coming occasion the hall will be decorated and the proceeds will be devoted toward the improvement of the department.

Next Wednesday afternoon a public meeting is to be held in the public school building under the auspices of the State Hygienic Department and under the control of Miss Platt. The object of the meeting is to make arrangements for a dental clinic so that the children of the community may have their dental deficiencies corrected.

A Ford automobile, registered in the name of J. R. Martin of Vallejo, was found on the highway about a mile and a half west of town last Monday evening by Constable Buckingham. To all appearances the Ford was simply abandoned by somebody who had driven it from Vallejo and upon approaching town deserted it upon fear of being apprehended. The car was in splendid running condition, nothing being out of order except the tail light, the wires of which were cut, evidenty with the intention of concealing the registration number. Martin was notified that the car was held here, but so far has taken no action to redeem it.

Mrs. Florence Johnson (Buckingham) was up from Stockton last Wednesday to visit her mother, and returned to her home early yesterday forenoon. Mrs. Buckingham has not been feeling very well during the past two weeks owing to a severe cold but is now greatly improved.

Mr. A. Graves and family have moved into the cottage owned by Mrs. Hattie Stewart.

Mrs. A. A. Dassonville and Mrs. Frank De Riso, Sr., spent Tuesday in a trip to Oakland and San Jose.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook of Washington entertained the following guests at their home over the weekend: Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Ford of Roseville, Mrs. William Gordon, Delbert Gordon, and Miss Ethel Cook of Napa.

Mrs. A. M. Cameron, who has been confined to her home by illness for the past several days, is able to be up again.

Mrs. Ofa Conrad and Mrs. Grace Stewart, who have resided in Washington for some time, are now moving to Sacramento, where they expect to make their home permanently.

James Lindsay was arrested by Detectives Thomas Pierson and Al Babayaco last Sunday on the charge of annoying girls in the Capital Candy Company factory and women crossing the bridge to Sacramento. He had made a practice of this for some time past and so careful was he that he never slipped up when any men were around. Girls who had been accosted by him made compiaint to the Sacramento officers but invariably he made his escape when an offi r approached the bridge entrance. He was tried before Judge Anderson last Tuesday and given thirty days in the city jail.

Last Sunday a week ago, several windows were broken in the Chinese house on Third street near the M street bridge. A party of young men drove along Third street in a small roadster and threw unripe oranges at the windows while passing. Seven panes of glass were broken in the bombardment and it seems lucky for the young men that none of the Chinese took a shot at them for their trouble. A reward is being offered for the arrest and conviction of those guilty of doing the damage.

SPECIAL ELECTION WILL BE HELD IN DISTRICT 900 ON MARCH 19TH TO SQUARE OFF BOND ISSUES

Some question has arisen as to the result that will follow if the refunding bond election in Reclamation District No. 900 set for March 19th, 1924, carries. At the election in question, there will be submitted to the landowners of the district, the question of whether or not authority shall be given for refunding issued and outstanding bonds of said district in the principal sum of $908,000, being all of the bonds of said district outstanding dated January 1, 1922. If this refunding bond election carries, then it will remain to the trustees of the district from time to time as bonds of the issue of January 1, 1922, come due, to determine whether or not said bonds shall be discharged by an assessment levied against landowners of the district or instead by the sale of refunding bonds.

The cost of a refunding bond election is quite considerable. It requires no more procedure to authorize the refunding of the entire outstanding issue of $908,000, than it does to authorize the refunding of merely one installment of that issue.

Merely as a matter of economizing the cost to the district, the trustees of reclamation district No. 900, following the example of the trustees of reclamation district No. 1000, and reclamation district No. 1001, are calling an election to submit to the landowners the question of whether or not authority shall be given for the refund of all outstanding bonds of the first issue. By taking this course, there will be the expense of but one election, the expense of but one validation suit, the expense of but one printing of bonds, the expense of securing but one certified copy of the county assessor roll.

With refunding bonds for the entire issue authorized, it will then rest with the trustees of the district to determine whether or not they shall raise funds by assessment or by the sale of refunding bonds in each year, some three or four months prior to the due date of the installments of the first issue. If the district is in a position to stand the assessment, the trustees will, as a matter of course raise the money by assessment. On the other hand, if it be an off year, and the landowners are not in such financial condition as to easily assimilate the assessmet, then the trustees will have the other alternative of selling refunding bonds instead of calling on the assessment.

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE BY HORST AT WEST SACRAMENTO

Frank C. Lane and family who have been occupying the old Kripp home at West Sacramento during the past year on the property owned by E. Clemens Horst, has been notified to move out in order that improvements might be made to the dwelling and that it be placed in proper condition for tenants.

Lane may move to Knights Landing to make his future home there. There are no homes in West Sacramento for rent at the present time.

It has been reported that it is the intention of Mr. Horst to improve all the property that he owns around West Sacramento headquarters. This, it is said, will mean strengthening of fences and the planting of several acres to fruit frees.

It has also been reported that the old barns built of corrugated iron on the northern side of the roadway near headquarters are about to be moved further back on the lot or possibly may be torn down and moved to other localities. Those barns are not being placed to any particular use at the present time and are conseuently falling into decay.

Some very valuable property in this locality is owned by Mr. Horst, but at the present time is practically bringing no revenue to its owner for the investment.

GAS COOKING DEMONSTRATIONS BEING MADE

Under the supervision of Mr. Schwartz and with the aid of Miss Emaline Rich, gas cooking demonstrations have been made during the past week in the homes of Mrs. McNevin on Fourth street and the Manchester home on Margaret street.

Representatives of the stove supply houses of Sacramento have also been present to demonstrate the value of their stoves.

At the Manchester home on Tuesday nineteen residents were present to view the process of using gas in household cooking and in the Manchester home on Thursday nineteen other ladies were present to take part in the demonstrations.

Both meetings were a great success and tended to increase the confidence of the housewives of Washington in the art of cooking with gas.

Mains are now being laid north of the railroad track on Anne street, along Fourth street, and from there will lead to all cross streets so that every home in the town can get a supply for household purposes.

A petition is being circulated in Riverbank. Mrs. T. Sanchez has been active in its circulation and several other ladies are aiding her so that the necessary number of signatures may be secured to induce the P. G. & E. Company to extend its supply pipes to that community.

The ladies have no fear about being able to get enough names to induce the corporation to furnish a supply.

REGISTRATIONS VERY SLOW; MUST BE MADE BEFORE APRIL 5TH

Woodland, Feb. 20.—Registrations are coming in exceedingly slow for the May primaries, according to County Clerk Harry R. Saunders, in order to participate in the primaries registrants must state their politics. This is in accordance with new state law.

Registration enabling electors to vote at that election closes April 6th.

All whose names are not on the new great register by April 6th cannot register their choice of a presidential nominee at the May 6th election.

If an elector desires to vote at this election and express a choice of a presidential nominee the party affiliation must be given.

Some newspapers take it as a matter of surprise that a Danish baron is attending the University Farm at Davis.

ROADS OF THIS DISTRICT BEING GREATLY IMPROVED

Over one hundred carloads of crushed rock have been distributed in this supervisor district during the past two months under the direction of Supervisor Leinberger.

This has been a great accommodation to residents of this district, especially where finished roads have not been built.

The river levee road south of West Sacramento has been greatly improved by the spreading of rock which was mostly done by the Van Tassel family.

Several of the streets of Washington have also been rocked to the great satisfaction of automobile owners of this section. Among these might be mentioned Second street between Anne and Harriet, and Fourth street north of Anne street.

The road from Kiesel Station to Elkhorn has been rocked for a distance of about a mile, as also has the road from Waldeck's place north to the rear end of the Elkhorn district.

Several carloads have been placed on the roadway at Glide Station and several more carloads have been placed near Babel Slough, extending as far south as the Glide ranch.

With a little more rain this rock will find firm footing on the dirt road and make a splendid highway duirng the coming summer.

South from the state highway in West Sacramento and through Carly Acres a firm and substantial road has been built that has been badly needed since the place was opened for colonization.

OLG tackles the sciences

February 3 was Our Lady of Grace School's Science Exploration Day. Groups of students in grades one through eight prepared displays and experiments for their fellow classmates to explore and interact with. Mrs. Del Parr, the fifth grade teacher, coordinated the event.

Many parents assisted with the projects and attended the affair. Mr. Michael McPherson, a chemistry specialist at Aerojet, entertained the crowd with a number of experiments and the launching of a "soda bottle rocket."

Teens seek odd jobs to fund trip

In a bold move that is sure to raise eyebrows, laughter and maybe a few dollars, the Second Mile Club is staging a one-day Rent-A-Teen fundraiser this Saturday, inviting all of West Sacramento to heap its dirtiest odd jobs on a bunch of youths who would simply love the exercise.

Truth be told, the S'Milers are out to raise money for a two-day snow retreat at a Donner Lake cabin next month. With this in mind, groups of local teens (accompanied by Second Mile leaders) will be going door-to-door Saturday, offering to wash cars in your driveway, remove debris from the yard, dust the cobwebs you can't reach on your vaulted ceilings, re-stack your firewood in the garage, take your children to the park – whatever you need done, all for minimum donations.

If this sounds like the kind of help you could use, please call the Second Mile folks at 375-1153, and we'll schedule to send a group to your home Saturday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Second Mile is a non-profit, West Sacramento-based arm of the global youth organization Campus Life.

Feb. 13, 10:42 p.m.

An officer investigating a collision on Anna St. found that a 37-year old woman driving one of the involved cars smelled of alcohol. She failed a field sobriety test, and in three attempts could not finish a breath test of blood alcohol level. The woman was booked.

Feb. 15, 6:40 a.m.

An officer checked a security room in the police department's booking area to locate a glass he had lent to a suspect for water. The officer noticed a hollowed ink pen protruding from the wall near a crease, and found that the sheet rock nearby had been broken. He withdrew two hypodermic needles and a bag with about two grams of methamphetamine from the wall. It may have belonged to the suspect.

Feb. 15, 9 p.m.

A Ohio man who had maintained a relationship on the internet with a West Sacramento woman had visited her, but the relationship had soured and he had been asked to leave. He now returned to her West Capitol Ave. complex intoxicated, and loudly serenaded her ("without success," notes the police logbook). The man was arrested for being drunk in public.

Feb. 15, 10:20 p.m.

On 5th St., police were called after a husband and wife got into an argument about the husband breaking her boyfriend's car windshield.

Feb. 15, 11:22 p.m.

Kelleher said the board has referred the question back to school administrators for another attempt at polling the families involved in GSMS. Uniforms are championed by some families as a way of reducing the pressures among students of spending money for stylish clothes, and as a way of reducing gang visibility and related pressures.

A number of teachers attended last week's board meeting to raise questions about the leadership of GSMS principal Janette Clark. But Clark's job performance was not an action item on the agenda at the meeting.

Several teachers earlier told the News-Ledger that they blamed recent staff resignations on the leadership of Clark, a former assistant principal at Sacramento's Hiram Johnson High School. District officials have attempted to mediate the rocky relationships among campus staff, and even held a special communications workshop between different involved parties at a Sacramento hotel.
